

I am fearfully and
wonderfully made,
marvelous are
Your
works

Psalm
139:14

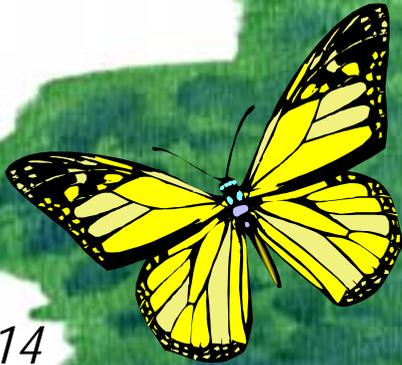

I am fearfully and
wonderfully made,
marvelous are
Your
works

Psalm
139:14

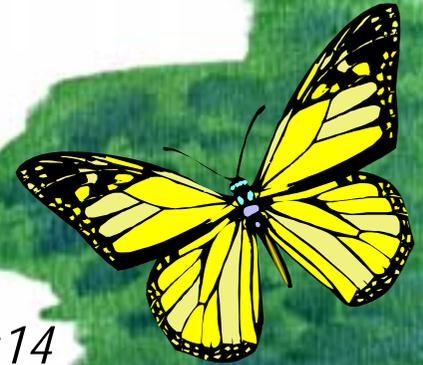

I am fearfully and
wonderfully made,
marvelous are
Your
works

Psalm
139:14

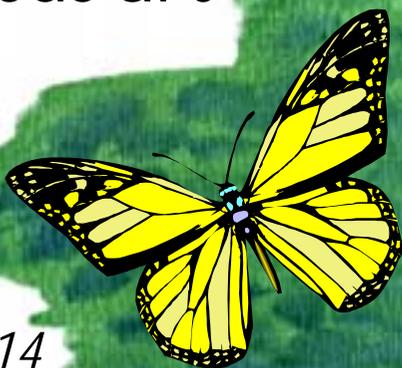

I am fearfully and
wonderfully made,
marvelous are
Your
works

Psalm
139:14

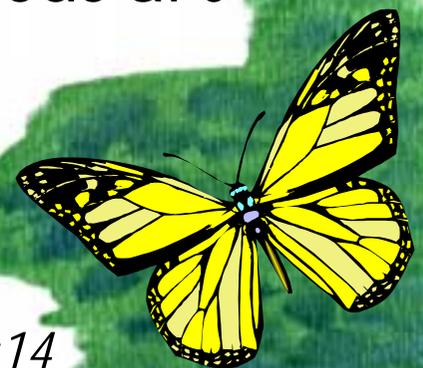

I am fearfully and
wonderfully made,
marvelous are
Your
works

Psalm
139:14

I am fearfully and
wonderfully made,
marvelous are
Your
works

Psalm
139:14

Complexity of Life

Even the simplest of creatures display a degree of complexity that shows they had to be created by God. All living creatures are made from molecules so complex that no natural process could have produced them. What really happens naturally is explained by the laws of thermodynamics: entropy, all matter tends toward randomness unless acted on by an outside force. The need for an outside force is proof that God had to intervene. Discovering the Creator is like finding a watch washed up on the beach: If there is a watch, there must have been a watchmaker. Likewise, if there is a creation, there must be a Creator. “For since the creation of the world His invisible attributes are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made” (Romans 1:20). Those who have bought into the lie of the world denying their Creator will not believe Jesus Christ (Luke 16:31). They condemn themselves by their unbelief (John 3:18).

BibleTract.org

Complexity of Life

Even the simplest of creatures display a degree of complexity that shows they had to be created by God. All living creatures are made from molecules so complex that no natural process could have produced them. What really happens naturally is explained by the laws of thermodynamics: entropy, all matter tends toward randomness unless acted on by an outside force. The need for an outside force is proof that God had to intervene. Discovering the Creator is like finding a watch washed up on the beach: If there is a watch, there must have been a watchmaker. Likewise, if there is a creation, there must be a Creator. “For since the creation of the world His invisible attributes are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made” (Romans 1:20). Those who have bought into the lie of the world denying their Creator will not believe Jesus Christ (Luke 16:31). They condemn themselves by their unbelief (John 3:18).

BibleTract.org

Complexity of Life

Even the simplest of creatures display a degree of complexity that shows they had to be created by God. All living creatures are made from molecules so complex that no natural process could have produced them. What really happens naturally is explained by the laws of thermodynamics: entropy, all matter tends toward randomness unless acted on by an outside force. The need for an outside force is proof that God had to intervene. Discovering the Creator is like finding a watch washed up on the beach: If there is a watch, there must have been a watchmaker. Likewise, if there is a creation, there must be a Creator. “For since the creation of the world His invisible attributes are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made” (Romans 1:20). Those who have bought into the lie of the world denying their Creator will not believe Jesus Christ (Luke 16:31). They condemn themselves by their unbelief (John 3:18).

BibleTract.org

Complexity of Life

Even the simplest of creatures display a degree of complexity that shows they had to be created by God. All living creatures are made from molecules so complex that no natural process could have produced them. What really happens naturally is explained by the laws of thermodynamics: entropy, all matter tends toward randomness unless acted on by an outside force. The need for an outside force is proof that God had to intervene. Discovering the Creator is like finding a watch washed up on the beach: If there is a watch, there must have been a watchmaker. Likewise, if there is a creation, there must be a Creator. “For since the creation of the world His invisible attributes are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made” (Romans 1:20). Those who have bought into the lie of the world denying their Creator will not believe Jesus Christ (Luke 16:31). They condemn themselves by their unbelief (John 3:18).

BibleTract.org

Complexity of Life

Even the simplest of creatures display a degree of complexity that shows they had to be created by God. All living creatures are made from molecules so complex that no natural process could have produced them. What really happens naturally is explained by the laws of thermodynamics: entropy, all matter tends toward randomness unless acted on by an outside force. The need for an outside force is proof that God had to intervene. Discovering the Creator is like finding a watch washed up on the beach: If there is a watch, there must have been a watchmaker. Likewise, if there is a creation, there must be a Creator. “For since the creation of the world His invisible attributes are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made” (Romans 1:20). Those who have bought into the lie of the world denying their Creator will not believe Jesus Christ (Luke 16:31). They condemn themselves by their unbelief (John 3:18).

BibleTract.org

Complexity of Life

Even the simplest of creatures display a degree of complexity that shows they had to be created by God. All living creatures are made from molecules so complex that no natural process could have produced them. What really happens naturally is explained by the laws of thermodynamics: entropy, all matter tends toward randomness unless acted on by an outside force. The need for an outside force is proof that God had to intervene. Discovering the Creator is like finding a watch washed up on the beach: If there is a watch, there must have been a watchmaker. Likewise, if there is a creation, there must be a Creator. “For since the creation of the world His invisible attributes are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made” (Romans 1:20). Those who have bought into the lie of the world denying their Creator will not believe Jesus Christ (Luke 16:31). They condemn themselves by their unbelief (John 3:18).

BibleTract.org

